Have You Moved Since Last You Registered?

If a voter has registered since January 1, 1922, and has not moved out of his precinct, he does not require a new registration until January 1, 1924. However, there are many hundreds of citizens in Glendale who have not registered since January 1 or who have moved into a new precinct. All such are disqualified from voting in the high school bond election October 20 unless they register by Wednesday night.

To accommodate such persons, W. D. Root, a deputy registrar of 1360 East Maple avenue, will be at the Press office, 222 South Brand, from 6 to 9 p. m., Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

HOBSON TO SPEAK AT FORUM OF C. OF C.

To Be Received by Delegation of Spanish War Veterans

Captain Richmond Hobson, hero of the Merrimack, and the man who, more than any other, is responsible for the elimination of the American saloon, will address the chamber of commerce at its forum meeting Tuesday, September 26. His subject will be "The Scientific Extension of Education as Applied to Commercial Problems."

Captain Hobson will be accompanied by his wife and will be received by a committee composed of veterans of the Spanish-American war. Mrs. Hobson will be welcomed by a reception committee from the Tuesday Afternoon club. This reception will take place at 6:15 at the chamber of commerce, preceding the dinner at 6:30.

MACHINES CRASH ON MANY ROADS

Careless Driving Brings Many Autoists to Much Grief

A little carelessness was shown by a number of motorists in Glendale over the week-end, these resulting in several accidents. Dr. Frank W. Dunning of Eagle Rock was driving a machine that collided with a car operated by Eugene A. Meane of Pasadena, at the corner of Brand boulevard and Broadway at 9 o'clock Sunday night. Little damage was done and no one was hurt.

Cars operated by Ernest Miller of 145 North Howard street, Lewis Catillano of 1245 South San Fernando boulevard and Broadway at 8 o'clock Sunday night. The damage was slight.

Oliver L. Earles, 1271 Thompson street and Hugh Adams of 7701 South Figueroa street, Los Angeles, were drivers of machines that collided with cars at the corner of Central and Broadway at 3:45 yesterday afternoon. No one was injured and the cars were but slightly damaged.

George C. Calvert of 673 West Elk street and A. B. Heacock of 708 East Madison street, were drivers of cars that collided at the corner of Brand and Broadway at 9:30 o'clock Saturday evening. The damage was slight.

A car driven by G. Hirschel of 1529 San Fernando road, and another operated by G. B. Wright, 1140 Allen, piled up on Brand boulevard at 8 o'clock Saturday morning. No one was hurt, although considerable tin was bent.

FORUM MEETING IS OPEN EVENT

No special speakers have been secured for the regular noon forum meeting at the Chamber of Commerce Tuesday, when reports of the committee working to promote the raising of the $25,000 bond fund for the electrifying of the Glendale avenue line; the annexation committee, the new depot committee, the Verdugo wash boulevard committee and the committee appointed to negotiate for a reduction of P. E. fares, will be called upon for reports.

President Roy Kent will conduct the business session and Assistant Secretary Sanders take the minutes, as Secretary Rhoades is in the north attending a summer school for chamber secretaries.

HAWAII SEEKS FOR KELLEY

Secretary Rex Kelley of the Glendale Y. M. C. A. district has received and declined a flattering offer to go to Hilo in the Hawaiian islands as general Y. M. C. A. secretary. He says that salary is not the big consideration with Y. M. C. A. workers and he figures no field offers greater opportunities for good work than the one he is in close as it is to the big city of Los Angeles. He therefore declined the Hilo offer and recommended another man who, he thinks, will be good timber for a post of that kind.

L. A. OUTFALL SEWER TO BE AVAILABLE

Glendale and San Fernando Valley to Be Admitted

MAJ. GRIFFIN SPEAKS

Declares New Plan Will Admit All Adjacent Valley Cities

The morning session of the Regional Planning Conference, Saturday afternoon, was marked by an address by City Manager Reeves on local problems. G. Wordon Whitnall, secretary of the conference gave a history of the past sessions of the conference, and Frederick Law Olmsted, the great expert of the Metropolitan park system of Boston, spoke on the initial plan.

At the luncheon, Dr. Jessie Russell, Lon Haddock, and others spoke.

At the afternoon session, while the resolutions were being adopted, Major John T. Griffin, city engineer of Los Angeles, said that the plan of the $12,000,000 sewers was large enough to take care of the whole San Fernando valley, including Glendale.

In the course of time, he said, it would be necessary for Glendale to finance its own construction. This means that Glendale and the San Fernando valley would have access to the Los Angeles outfall as originally planned. Other connections and outfalls for other districts, he suggested, would be constructed in time.

The resolutions will be found on another page.

MERCHANTS' TEAM DEFEATS COLTS EASILY

Local Stars Maintain Record as Original Cleaners

The Glendale Merchants' baseball team yesterday scored their nineteenth victory this season, when they defeated Pirone's Colts—a Los Angeles aggregation—by a score of 10 to 5.

The Merchants succeeded in holding the Colts down without a run until the last half of the eighth inning, when the Los Angeles team rallied and crossed the plate five times.

The result of yesterday's game clearly shows the strength of the Glendale team. A few weeks ago we played the Colts and only won by one point, while yesterday Pirone brought a much stronger team to Glendale and yet we won by a comfortable margin," said Manager Cobb yesterday.

Johnson and Page umpired.

RECKLESS DRIVING

At 5 o'clock Saturday evening, William Mullen of La Hayne, was arrested at the corner of San Fernando road and Los Feliz. He is charged with operating his machine in a reckless manner. His bail was placed at $300, which was paid, pending his hearing before Judge Lowe today.

LENSES THIEVES

W. L. Lammers of 400 West Elk street reported to the Glendale police that at 9:20 o'clock last night, someone stole the lenses from his machine while it was standing in front of the Baptist church. Up to this time nothing had been heard of the missing articles.

CHARMING SHOWER IS GIVEN MISS SAYRE

Sister Honors Bride-to-Be of Lieutenant Louis Young

Miss Helen Sayre of 914 South Central avenue entertained Saturday afternoon with a charming miscellaneous shower in honor of her sister, Miss Bertha Sayre, whose engagement to Lieut. Louis T. Young is announced. The wedding will take place September 27.

The Sayre home was most attractively decorated, many beautiful paintings covering the walls. They are the work of a brother, F. Grayson Sayre, who is a well-known artist. Marigolds, asters and ferns were also used throughout the house.

The afternoon was opened with a musical program, much to the delight of all present. Mrs. Lura Harris, a lyric soprano, sang two numbers, after which Mrs. Ruth Olshausen, a mezzo-soprano also sang. Mrs. Gretta Cordary, who has a rich contralto voice, and Mrs. Virginia Freeman, a beautiful soprano voice, gave several numbers.

Following the program, which was most delightful, a clever game was played. Each guest was presented with a large sheet of paper containing 12 questions, concerning the courtship of the bride. The last question caused much merriment for each was requested to write an original poem wishing the young couple happiness.

Following this, Gerald Simon, two year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Simon, came in dressed as cupid, with a large white bow, Marsha Cleveland was dressed as a beautiful bride, with white gown and long, graceful veil. She came in wheeling a large tea wagon filled with miscellaneous gifts. On the front was perched little Gerald Simon. The wagon was wheeled over in front of the honoree, where the many beautiful gifts were admired. While they were enjoying this feature, brick ice cream centered with a pink heart, and cake was served to about forty guests. Pictures were taken of the miniature bride and cupid, as well as of the bride and guests.

Miss Sayre, who has made her home here for about eight years, has a host of friends who extend their best wishes for her happiness.

Lieut. Young is stationed at San Diego with the navy, and after their wedding trip, they will go to San Diego.

PASADENA PARK EXPERT LIKES CITY PARK

Declares It Is Best Purchase Glendale Could Have Made

A number of important suggestions as to how the Glendale-Verdugo park should be improved were made to Sam Warren, superintendent of the park, by J. Albrecht, who for many years has been superintendent of the parks of Pasadena and an authority on horticulture and city planning. He told Sam that in his estimation Glendale-Verdugo park is the finest natural park location owned by any city anywhere near the size of Glendale in Southern California. It is a truly wonderful situation for a public playground and recreation ground, he said.

"The city of Glendale made absolutely no mistake in buying this park," said Mr. Albrecht. "If it had waited five years and if the park had been available at that time, which is very doubtful, the city would have had to pay two or three times as much for the property. Right at this time Pasadena is paying $1000 an acre for land that she could have bought five years ago for $100 per acre—and she is glad to get it at that price. It is the same way all over Southern California. The Glendale people are fortunate in being able to secure this wonderful park site."

Among the suggestions made by Mr. Albrecht were the following: Place everything below the superintendents, including the ball field, in lawn.

Plant quick-growing trees between the pavilion and the lawn and at other points of the park. Locate the plunge as high up on the hillside as possible, then the waters from the plunge may be used for irrigating the lawns and the flowers below. Pasadena, it is claimed, has lost thousands of dollars through locating its Brookside plunge at the lowest point in the park.

Have running water coming down the natural creek bed, if possible. This would add greatly to the general attractiveness of the park.

It will no doubt take years before this park is put in the best possible condition, but by having a landscape architect lay out the grounds and then working along the plan laid down the park can be put in the best possible condition.

The board of directors of the Glendale Music club are meeting this afternoon at 3:30 in the music room of the high school to discuss organization plans for the coming year.

FEDERATION TO HEAR JOHN L. GRIFFIN

City Engineer of L. A. to Speak on Sewage and Sewers

A meeting of the federated improvement associations will be held in the chamber of commerce auditorium Tuesday evening. The principal subject to be discussed at the meeting is "sewers," which has been and now is the most vital problem before this city. John L. Griffin, city engineer of Los Angeles, will be the principal speaker of the evening. His subject will be "The Development of the Sanitation Plan on Which the Regional Planning Conference Has Been Working for Months." Anyone interested in this subject is invited to attend this session.

This question is of vital interest to everyone in Glendale, and for this reason Dr. Jessie A. Russell, the chairman of the federated improvement associations, is extending an invitation to everyone to attend.

At a recent meeting of the City club of Los Angeles that organization outlined a plan to the council of that city which is similar to the one supported by the regional planning conference, this being the creation of a metropolitan sanitation district, to include Los Angeles and all adjacent territory from the mountains to the sea. In their communication to the council the directors of this club stated:

"The creation of such a district would seem to present these advantages:

"1.—It would not tax the bonding power of any of the separate municipalities.

"2.—It would thus make the financing of large operations comparatively easy and without drag upon other legitimate improvements which have a claim upon our bonding power.

"3.—It would guard the health of each of our municipalities and make sure that negligence on the part of any could not affect the whole district.

"4.—It would be another step in cooperation in Southern California and help lead the way to other large-visioned community enterprises.

"The directors of the Los Angeles City club respectfully suggest that your honorable body consider the desirability of obtaining the legislation necessary to make possible a metropolitan sanitation district, and second, that the improvements connected with the outfall sewer and sewage treatment program be planned so that they will fit into such a district plan."

ELK HERD HAVE BIG CELEBRATION

Picnic at Glendale-Verdugo Park Is Complete Success

Though the day was warm, many Glendale Elks and their families turned out for their annual picnic, held Sunday at Glendale-Verdugo park.

The day was a success from beginning to end and everyone had a jolly good time. Upon entering the grounds everyone was requested to register and a prize was awarded for this. Miss Louise Moniot drew the lucky number.

At 1:30 the children held their parade, headed by the Elks band. Miss Mary Margaret Salmacia, 2 1/2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Salmacia, led the parade. She was charming in a fluffy dress of purple and white. On her head she wore a crown of purple and white, on the front of which was the Elks' insignia. She also won first prize of a doll.

Every child was given B. P. O. E. balloons by Roberts and Echols and little individual boxes of candy were passed out as a courtesy from Kaighn's Candy Co. of South Maryland avenue.

The Elks' band furnished splendid music all day. They gave a concert just before dinner and then sat down to a repast on a table reserved for them. They played during the entire afternoon and later in the evening journeyed to the dance pavilion, where they were awarded prize waltzers and prize fox-trotters.

Miss Julia Robinson, daughter of Mayor and Mrs. Spencer Robinson, won the first prize for ball throwing. She threw it 142 feet, which was 42 feet beyond the mark. Her closest rival threw it 90 feet.

Two hundred dozen bottles of Sierra Club beverage were consumed and 50 dozen bottles of Eastside Zest, besides 50 gallons of ice cream. These were all given away free along with cigars and cigarettes for the men folks.

Over $600 worth of valuable prizes were awarded during the day for the various contests and the day was filled with pleasure for all who attended.

CABINET MEETS

The high school cabinet met today from 12 to 12:30 to consider changes in its constitution.

25 PERCENT INCREASE IN THE SCHOOLS

Wilson Avenue Intermediate Is Swamped With Pupils

BIG REGISTRATION

The New Higher Grade School on Glendale Is Not Crowded as Yet

No authentic figures on registration in the Glendale city schools will be available until the principals assemble this afternoon for a conference with Superintendent Richardson D. White. There is every indication, however, that Mr. White's prediction of an increase of at least 25 per cent will be realized.

Wilson Avenue Intermediate was almost swamped with new pupils and does not seem to have experienced the relief expected from the building of the new intermediate at Glendale and Park. The Thursday and Friday registration there totaled 380, and this morning more than 200 students presented themselves. It would seem, therefore, as if last year's enrollment of 600 would be attained.

Reports from the new intermediate indicate that there is no crowding there as yet and it is possible some change in district lines will be made that will bring about a more equalized distribution of the seventh and eighth graders.

Acacia avenue school also had a big enrollment.

In speaking of the matter, Miss Noble said the places where the new pupils would present themselves could not very well be determined in advance because so many of them are newcomers in Glendale.

GLENDALIANS FIND SKELETON

Hunting in Ventura They Discover Remains of Unknown Man

J. B. Combs, Billy Hunt and Walter Young of Glendale, met with a rather thrilling adventure last week when they went on a hunting trip. They were up in Ventura county on the Piru river, and were hiking along among the rocks when they came upon a skeleton of a man, who evidently had been lying there for about two years. Nothing remained but bones and a few clothes.

Ventura officials were called and took the skeleton to Ventura for investigation.

TRUCK SALVAGE IS UNDERWAY

Salvaging of a $5000 truck, which was completely wrecked and the driver, H. A. Bailey of 1018 Vine street was killed, when it collided with a fast Southern Pacific passenger train at San Fernando road and Doran street on September 6, was started Saturday by the O. W. Peet Rock and Sand Co. of Los Angeles, who are owners of the truck.

A representative of the company estimated the damage to be about $4800.

AT SOMERSET FARM
GLENDALE MEET
OF REGIONALS

Sixty. Gather at Sherer's Home for Picnic Dinner

The heat of Saturday was not great enough to evaporate the enthusiasm of the old settlers who came together at Somerset farm, the home of J. C. Sherer on South San Fernando road, sixty strong.

A fine picnic dinner was spread at noon under the huge pepper trees which make such a grateful shade in the Shearer dooryard, and was followed by informal talks by the host, Rev. C. R. Norton, and others. G. W. Sanford of Sycamore Canyon, recited an original poem and C. H. Reese read some selections.

Mr. Shearer gave the history of Somerset farm and Glendale. The farm, he said, was part of the original 200 acres given to Julio Verdugo as a homestead at the time the ranch was sold under foreclosure in 1869. As a compromise he was allowed to retain this acreage, 98 on the west side of Verdugo road and 102 on the east side, where the old original adobe home built in 1835 stood on land afterwards purchased by Mrs. Rhoads, who did not value it nor preserve it. Julio was the son of the original grantee. After his death the property on the west side was divided among his numerous children, giving them 7 to 8 acres apiece.

Mr. Sherer also told of the primitive water supply which was turned to him and neighboring ranchers only once a week for irrigation purposes in open ditches. They had to save water in cisterns to last the balance of the week. That was in 1883. The condition did not last long and the latter part of the same year the Verdugo Canyon Water company was formed of which Mr. Sherer was one of the original incorporators. He has been a member since. The city now owns a controlling interest.

Of the 13 acres in Somerset farm, six have recently been subdivided and placed on the market. The rest of it Mr. Sherer declares he will save unbroken for a home.

FLO ROBERTS IN
'SLEEP WALKER'
AT GLENDALE

Famous Stage Star Supports Constance Binney

In 1915 Florence Roberts, famous stage star of "Zaza," "Sapho," "The Eternal Magdalene," deserted the boards temporarily for a single picture. Since that time she has not appeared before a camera until her recent work with Constance Binney in "The Sleep Walker," which comes to the Glendale theater today.

She talks interestingly of the changes from open stages and poor lighting to the present glass-roofed plants, modern to the last degree.

"Those old open air stages were attractive to the eye," relates Miss Roberts, "but in rainy weather they were an abomination. While we were filming 'Sapho,' rain drenched a bedroom set—and had to work all day beneath soaked bed clothes. The result was a spell of sickness which sent me back to the stage."

The mistakes of a really great man only make his virtues show stronger by contrast.

LODGE HERE

Burbank Members Will Give to Orphans' Home Fund

Burbank Rebekah lodge was honored with a visit from Julia V. Beecher, D. D. P., at their regular meeting last Thursday evening. Many technical points of business and procedure were discussed.

Mrs. Beecher, D. D. P., gave a report of the latest rules from the assembly and also interesting news of the I. O. O. F. Orphans home at Gilroy, Calif.

Communications from the grand sire, president and assembly gave the information that Sept. 20, 1922, being the seventy-first anniversary of the I. O. O. F. order, a special effort was to be made on that date to raise funds for the Orphans' home.

The members of the Burbank Rebekah lodge unanimously voted that each member should give 25 cents or more to this fund, which is known as the "bread and butter" fund.

The Burbank Rebekah lodge will entertain the members of the Van Nuys Rebekah lodge Thursday evening, Sept. 23. This includes all members of the Burbank lodge and their families, each lady to bring a cake and enough plates and spoons for her family.

RAISING OF THE DEAD TOLD BY
DR. EDMONDS

Presbyterian Divine Delivers an Inspiring Address

Rev. W. E. Edmonds having returned from his vacation, preached Sunday morning at the Presbyterian church. His subject was "And you hath He quickened, who were dead in trespasses and sin."

"This is a strong word. When a man is dead, all he needs is life. Life is the opposite to death. How we all shrink from the word, the fact, 'dead.' It is a strong figure Paul uses here—'dead in trespasses and sin.' All about us are people clothed and going about, dead. For the believer in Christ there is no such thing. This old world is a vale of tears; souls are going out of it all the time. Those miners up at Jackson this moment are frenzied workers trying to save life. Is there anything like that in the church of Christ trying to reach dead men, frenzied to save the lost? What shall be said of the saved man or woman who has no care for the dead souls? I plead with you, have some interest in those dead!"

"The great truth is, 'Ye must be born again.' No man has a right to stand here who does not believe this. The only thing by which work can be gauged is, are souls being saved? Nothing else. There have been drops of mercy, but, oh! for the flood tide."

"All you that hold office, why do you hold that position you are in? Not one has any right to, except to be true, to be concerned for the lost. Between now and the time of going into the new church, every one of you should take a definite goal of soul-saving. If we take a definite responsibility, God will do His part. I am trying to awaken you to the awful fact that men are dying. You say, 'I live a quiet life.' It won't be quiet if you sense the lost!"

"There is a price to be paid, for anybody can simply drift with the stream. There must be a holy character. It is great to read Christian biographies and get tuned up. It stirs one's blood to read of those who dared and did. John Knox, who prayed, 'Give me Scotland or I die!' Luther in the old Wartburg castle, Bunyan in his prison; Moody, who said, 'There shall be one man so given over to God that God can show what He can do with a surrendered life.' These had the passion to win souls that are dead."

"Men and women, will you stand with me in a program for those who are dead?"

NEW RIGGINGS FOR BURBANK OWLS'
DRILL TEAM

Local Lads Make Good Showing at First Performance

Adorned in their new and classy uniforms, the members of the newly organized drill team of the Burbank Owl nest gave an exhibition of their abilities at the Friday night meeting, which marked the opening work of the team.

Despite the newness of the organization, the members of the team performed like veterans and their excellent work was well received by the other members of the nest.

The new uniforms of the members of the team are very becoming. In keeping with the policy of the organization, the uniforms were secured from local members, the clothing being bought at Sitar's haberdashery and the shoes at Torelli's shoe store.

Incidentally, the prices given by the two Burbank merchants were lower than the prices quoted by outside firms.

The members of the team are: Captains, Sinclair and Bennett; counters, Rogers, Phelps, Schultz, Farrell, Stentle and Allgie; G. F. Hull, the new treasurer of the local nest, has assumed his duties.

The number of present members of the Burbank Owl nest is 99, with five applications pending, the growth of the organization being very rapid.

The members of the local nest have been invited to visit the Montebello nest Sept. 23. The invitation has been accepted, the local delegation to include the drill team, who will perform their drills at the meeting.

About 10 Burbank Owls recently paid a visit to the Los Angeles nest No. 1735. Two honors were carried away by the Burbank delegation, Harry Sinclair winning a jewel case and J. A. Selby taking first prize as the best man dancer. Mr. Selby's partner was Mrs. C. A. Horne, whose good dancing greatly aided her partner in winning the coveted honor.

FRENCH RESIDENCE IS DAMAGED BY BIG FIRE

Fire Does $500 Damage to House at Ninth and Magnolia

The home of W. French at North Ninth street and West Magnolia avenue, was damaged to the extent of $500 at 11 o'clock Friday, according to a report to the Burbank police Saturday.

The origin of the fire is unknown, starting in a clothes closet near the kitchen.

Mr. French is the father-in-law of Fred Olchavsky, deputy city marshal, who took part in the fight to extinguish the blaze.

All of the men who took part in fighting the fire, but one, were members of the police department, the volunteer firemen failing to show up, it was reported.

Dropping two police calls in order to respond to the fire alarm, four members of the police department practically ruined their police uniforms in fighting the blaze.

BURBANK OFFICERS INVESTIGATING THREE CASES

Auto, Grape Robberies and One Holdup Is Reported

The Burbank police Saturday were busy investigating two robberies and an attempted holdup.

A Chevrolet touring car was reported stolen from in front of Mulvey's drug store Friday night. The legal owner of the car was said to be D. M. Bullock, the registered owner being Arthur T. Schmuck.

An Italian giving his name as Lombardo and claiming to be the owner of a vineyard within the city limits of Los Angeles and about a mile and a half from Burbank, reported that a man was attempting to steal grapes from his land. The alleged thief was scared away, leaving his Ford truck behind. The Hollywood police was notified of the case.

The reported holdup is said to have occurred in the vicinity of Turkey Crossing. When the police reached the scene neither the man who reported the would-be robbery or the would-be robber could be located.

GOSPEL OF JOHN IS DISCUSSED BY REV. PRESTON

City Hall Bible Class Considers Scripture

Basing his talk upon the 10th chapter of John's gospel, the Good Shepherd chapter of the New Testament, Mr. Keith Brooks at the city hall Bible class, Sunday, pointed out that the Good Shepherd, Christ, knows His true sheep under all their faults and that He knew the hypocrites under all their disguises. A tourist in the east ob serving the way the shepherd knew his sheep and had a name for each, asked how the sheep were distinguished, as they all looked alike to the ordinary observer. The shepherd began to point out slight defects on different sheep by which he could tell them apart. It would not be surprising if the Good Shepherd knew His sheep in this way.

"My sheep hear my voice, and they follow me. The true believer is marked by the sheep and the foot. This is the Bible sheep mark. If a person has an ear for the commands of Christ and feet that follow in the way He points, it is very evident that he belongs to His flock.

Of these (not all who profess to be Christians and have membership in some church) Christ said, 'I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand. My father who gave them to me is greater than all; and no man is able to pluck them out of my Father's hand.' To be safe is one thing; to realize it is another thing. The most miserable Christians are those who have no sense of their security in Christ. There are many who have had a definite saving experience, and are therefore safe yet they do not know that they are safe.

Some bandits, after robbing a man, blindfolded him, and after carrying him a short distance, they told him they had fastened a rope to the limb of a tree, that soon he was to grasp hold of the rope and would then swing out over a deep canyon. There he could hang until he got ready to drop upon the rocks below. The poor fellow was lifted up to the rope and he swung out. There he hung for dear life while the bandits made their escape. All the deeds of his life came before him as he swung out, and he was to be dashed on the rocks below. At last his muscles began to knot and he kned the end was near. Oh, the misery of those few moments! Then he dropped—just 18 inches to solid ground. He had been perfectly safe all the time, but he didn't know it. I have met some persons who have accepted Christ and met the conditions of salvation as laid down in the Bible, yet they are in constant misery lest they might at any moment, by some terrible act which they might commit, drop into hell. The great longing of the Christian's heart is for some guarantee against himself. Here it is in the plain promise of Christ.

According to these verses, it is not a question of our losing Him but of His losing us. The Psalmist said: "Though we fall we shall not be utterly cast down for the Lord upholdeth us with His hand." The question is—can He lose a true child of God? His plain answer to the question is given in John 6:37: "This is the Father's will which hath sent me, that of all which He hath given me, I should lose nothing, but should raise it up at the last day." The believer is held in an omnipotent grasp. The hand that created him and the hand that was wounded for him closes in eternal grasp upon him.

All these are apposite by the intercessory work of Christ in heaven. As Jesus said in His prayer, "I will pray not for the world but for them which thou hast given me, for they are thine." (17:9). This made just the difference between Peter and Judas. Jesus told Peter that he would fall but that he would return for his prayer of intercession would uphold him. Judas was a hypocrite and therefore had no intercessor. When Judas fell there was nothing to stop his recent into hell. Peter came back and did his mightiest work. Can the prayer of Christ be unanswered? He himself says not in John 11:42.

When this doctrine is taught, there is always someone to ask: "If we are saved by Christ, what is to hinder one's living as he likes after he becomes a Christian?" This very proposition was put up to the Apostle Paul and he said: "Shall we sin because we are not under law, but under grace? God forbid." A man said to Spurgeon, "According to your teaching, I could go out right now and commit murder without affecting my salvation." Spurgeon replied: "If you had such a desire, you could, but you would thereby prove that you were never saved." Those who know what their possession is in Christ love Him the more for the safety He gives them as often undeserving children. The Spirit of God, the intercession of Christ and the chastening hand of the heavenly Father come in to prevent their living in sin habitually, and though they may at times stumble, they cannot remain a moment at ease until they are restored to communion with God.

An Austrian who had gone suddenly insane in 1913 and had been confined in an asylum near Vienna, blissfully ignorant of the war and of the revolution, was recently discharged as cured. To celebrate he hired a cab and had himself driven to the Prater. Upon arrival the cabman demanded 18,000 kronen. The cured man paid and grew faint. "This is terrible," he said tremblingly. "I did not dream of such extortion. I've only a 20-kronen piece with me."

The driver stared at the gold coin, but answered readily. "That's all right. You get 18,000 kronen in change."

The cured man was terrified. "Here, take it all," he said, "and drive me back to the asylum."

DRIFTING IS REPEATED BY REV. PRESTON

Pastor of Pacific Avenue Methodist Tells of Least Resistance

Rev. Harley G. Preston, pastor of the Pacific Avenue Methodist church chose as his subject for Sunday morning's sermon, "Drifting."

His talk in part followed:

"Therefore we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things which we have heard, lest at any time we should let them slip." (Or slip away from them. R. V.) Heb. 2:1.

"What is drifting? A good many of us may have recollections of having at some time worked our way up some beautiful stream in canoe or boat with purpose and ardor and lustrous shew. We have come to a place of exquisite beauty, where all manner of loveliness are in fellowship to make a haunt of natural glory and peace. And we rest on our oars and we do not know how to get on, and so we begin to slip back and drift away. We lose the secret home of beauty, and we loiter through the dingy commonplace.

"Or we may have come to a spot where the river bank opens out, and vistas appear, wide landscapes being unveiled on either side. The sense of imprisonment changes into the feeling of largeness and freedom, and we see horizons that are very far off. And then our effort flags, and we begin to slip back from the outlook, and soon the large vision changes into narrow restrictions, and we are back in the straits again.

"Now, what is the parallel in human experience which is suggestive in this figure of speech? It is something like this: We have come up the river of life, through a mass of commonplace restrictions and colorless happenings, to momentous events. It does not matter what the events are and what are the happenings. We have brought into a combination of circumstances where life opened out in larger relations, in deeper reverences, in richer moods. We could say with the Psalmist: 'Thou hast brought me into a large place.'

"We could say with the Apostle Paul: 'Eye hath not seen nor ear heard, nor hath entered into the heart of man the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him.'

"We had tremendous experiences. How the banks opened out! And we said to ourselves, 'This is Life.'

"Now, may I ask, is there anything Christ can do for us which we have about it which can never be lost? No, we can lose it, and lose it by drifting. We can slip down the stream.

"And the wonderful vision which we had on our way can die away and fade into the light of common day. And therefore we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things which we have experienced, lest haply we drift away."

GREETINGS TO THE SCHOOL CHILDREN OF 1922-23

Glendale Daily Press

GLENDALE, CALIFORNIA, MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1922

The children of the nation are the builders of tomorrow and of the many years to come. As the mind is trained so it will build.

Brick and Stone are but the manifestations; the true school is the atmosphere of class rooms.

BOARD OF EDUCATION HAS HUGE RESPONSIBILITIES AND FINANCIAL PROBLEMS

Total Staff of Eighty-six Represents Payroll of $158,204.25 and Is Growing Constantly Greater

HANDLED $260,000 BOND ISSUE LAST YEAR
Four New Schools Constructed; Without Compensation, Organization Works with Complicated Problem of Growth

It is hard to measure the disinterested service rendered by members of the board of education upon whom rests the responsibility for the welfare of our city schools. It is a huge responsibility, too. Within the past year it has constructed four new school buildings financed by a bond issue of $260,000 and including the purchase of considerable land for school sites or additions to campuses.

The regular business of conducting the city schools is equal to that of a large corporation. During the year 1921-22 the regular staff, including superintendent, supervisors and teachers totaled 86 men and women whose salaries aggregated $145,621.75. The nine janitors brought the salary list to $12,582.50 additional, making total expenditure for salaries $158,204.25.

With each year of increased attendance and consequent expansion responsibilities are augmented. The community cannot be too grateful to the men and women who are unselfishly giving service on this board without compensation and striving to better the schools and the community. Following is the personnel of the board:

David J. Hibben, president; Mrs. Arthur C. Brown, secretary; Mrs. A. A. Barton, Dr. P. O. Lucas and E. H. Learned.

David J. Hibben, president of the board of education, whose home is at 123 East Laurel street, in the Tropic district. He and Mrs. Hibben came here 15 years ago and from the first interested themselves in matters educational. For five or six years he served as trustee on the Tropic school board, and when that city was annexed to Glendale was elected to the Glendale board, being also re-elected to the board of education when the city charter went into effect a year ago last July.

Mr. Hibben was a builder and contractor for a good many years and his knowledge and experience along that line have been of great value to the board in the carrying out of its building program and the repair of buildings.

Mrs. Arthur C. Brown of 201 West Milford street, secretary of the board, has served about four years, having been re-elected following the adoption of the city charter. A part of the time she was the presiding chairman.

The fact that she was a teacher before her marriage, and her husband's position as principal of McKinley junior high in Los Angeles, and her own work in the P.T.A., which she served as president of the Glendale federation, kept her keenly interested in school matters and especially fitted her for the official position she holds.

She is regarded as one of the most public-spirited women in the community and her service for the Red Cross did not end with the war. She is still the active head of its local home service department.

Mrs. A. A. Barton of 920 East Mountain street is a woman of such public spirit that she naturally gravitates to positions of responsibility. She served efficiently as president of the Parent-Teacher association and after the expiration of her term of office was made chairman of the Mutual Benefit Reading Circle, affiliated with the P.T.A., which meets weekly at the city library.

She is ambitious for the Glendale schools and is able to bring a broad intelligence to bear on school problems. She was chairman of the local branch of the community service organization during the World war and active in Red Cross work.

Dr. P. O. Lucas, who has long been established as a local dentist, now resides at 115 South Verdugo

PRESIDENT OF THE BOARD

DAVID J. HIBBEN

road, opposite the new high school site. He came to Glendale in 1913 when the town had a population of only 7000 or 8000 and most of the grammar school buildings of the city have been built since that time. He was at first located in the southern section of the city, but about six years ago moved to Riverdale drive, where he lived until he made the change mentioned when he purchased his present home a few months ago. He has two children to educate and he and his wife have always taken a keen interest in school matters. Mrs. Lucas having been active in P.T.A. work in connection with the Pacific Avenue association, which she served as president.

After the city charter went into effect and it became necessary to select additional members for the enlarged board of education, E. H. Learned of 1543 Glenwood road was a logical candidate. His residence of eight or ten years in the district had made him acquainted with school conditions and problems, and he had also served with the advisory committee of trustees when the building program for grammar schools, which started with the rebuilding of the Broadway school, was inaugurated. He has proved a valuable member.

PRINCIPAL OF MAGNOLIA AVE.

MISS EMMA SAXTON

Before the annexation of the city of Tropic to Glendale, Miss Emma Saxton had taught in the Cerritos avenue school. At the time of the annexation, however, she was teaching in the Central avenue school, Glendale. Her home is in Virginia place, and when a principal was needed for the Magnolia avenue school, she was the natural candidate for it, and has remained there ever since, with satisfaction to herself, her pupils and the school officials.

BUSINESS MANAGER OF CITY SCHOOLS

DAVID BLACK

—Photograph by Dolberg
David Black, business manager of the Glendale city schools, was born at Lanark, Scotland, and came to the United States when 12 years of age. He grew up in Chicago, where he attended the public schools and later a commercial college. He first saw Glendale 19 years ago when he came via the Salt Lake road, that is now likely to be electrified. Not until 12 years ago did he come west to stay and then he came direct to Glendale and settled on Kenneth road, where his home now is. He says a lot of water has run under the bridge since then, and once or twice the bridge has been washed out. During the world war he was in the Y. M. C. A. service in connection with the base hospital at Camp Kearney. He has always been interested in matters of education and has served for several years as grammar school trustee. After the adoption of the city charter in July, 1921, he was elected a member of the board of education, which office he resigned a few months ago to accept the appointment of business manager of city schools, a position for which he is well qualified by natural interest and business training.

PRINCIPAL OF GRAND VIEW

MISS VERA SINCLAIR

—Photograph by Dolberg
Miss Vera Sinclair, whose home is at 245 Sinclair avenue, is, it is believed, the only teacher in the Glendale city schools who was born in our city. She attended the public schools here, was graduated from Los Angeles Normal and taught for two years in the Broadway school before being transferred to Wilson avenue intermediate. Her promotion to the principalship of the Grand View school is generally approved in the community.

GROWTH OF SCHOOLS IS REFLECTING DEVELOPMENT OF GLENDALE'S INCREASE

Registration Bounds Upward as Population Increases Bringing New Problems of Housing and Tuition to Authorities

$260,000 BOND ISSUE GIVES BRIEF RELIEF

With New Units Constructed During Year, It Is Indicated That They Will Be Outgrown by Enrollment in Various Classes

The city schools of Glendale have experienced a growth within the past three years that has not only somewhat dismayed citizens and school officials, but has amazed all observers of the fastest growing city in the United States.

During the war, like everything else, the schools were practically at a standstill. But with the signing of the armistice and return to normal conditions an influx of population sent the attendance forward by leaps and bounds and necessitated a building program which is not over yet.

It is apparent that the buildings erected the past year under the $260,000 bond issue will afford only temporary relief. More school rooms must be provided at Broadway, which is badly congested, and although one of the proposed three units for Columbus avenue has been built, there will be no room in the near future. Pacific avenue is crowded and Grand View, although just completed, will be crowded the day it opens. The Glendale avenue intermediate will probably need more room another year, and purchases of additional ground should be made for Columbus and Glendale intermediate.

The growth of the schools can perhaps best be illustrated by a comparison of enrollment figures for the past two years.

Wilson avenue intermediate, September, 1920, 416; September, 1921, 525; June, 1922, 574.
Cerritos, September, 1920, 293; September, 1921, 381; June, 1922, 423.
Columbus, September, 1920, 288; September, 1921, 381; June, 1922, 401.
Broadway, September, 1920, 224; September, 1921, 293; June, 1922, 322.
Pacific avenue, September, 1920, 246; September, 1921, 299; June, 1922, 332.
Colorado, September, 1920, 222; September, 1921, 266; June, 1922, 263.
Central avenue, September, 1920, 177; September, 1921, 248; June, 1922, 294.
Doran street, September, 1920, 125; September, 1921, 173; June, 1922, 205.
Acacia avenue, September, 1920, 75; September, 1921, 101; June, 1922, 91.
Magnolia, September, 1920, 25; September, 1921, 26; June, 1922, 24.

The kindergarten enrollment in September, 1920, was 192, making the total enrollment at the beginning of school in 1920, 2283. At the close of school in June, 1922, the kindergarten enrollment totaled 176, having been somewhat reduced by the advancement of pupils to the first grade, the total enrollment at the school close being 3105.

The gain last year over the previous year in attendance was about 28 per cent. Every indication points to a gain of at least 25 per cent this coming year, which would mean the addition to the city schools of 776 pupils, bringing the total enrollment to 3975.

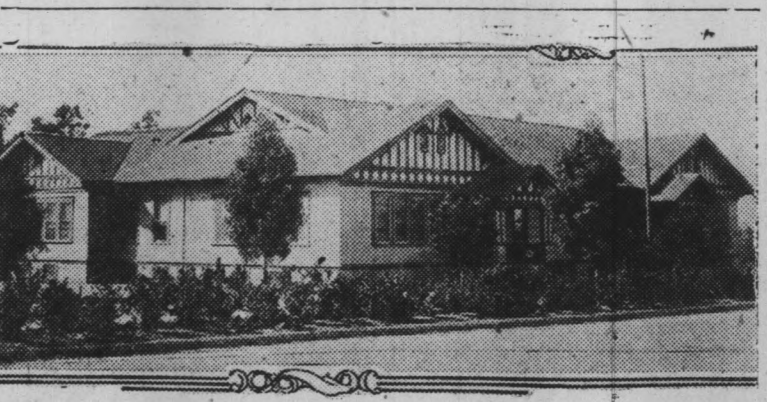

With such steady expansion staring educators in the face, it is easy to understand why school buildings so soon become inadequate to meet attendance demands. In reckoning the expense the constant increase in taxable capacity should not be forgotten. If our bonds increase there is a corresponding gain in the taxable property to carry the increase.

Expenditures made during the year for new buildings under the bond issue of January 28, 1922, which in round numbers totaled $263,883, were as follows:

Acacia avenue, original contract and extras, $24,443.
Grand View, $31,849.
Columbus avenue, $20,882.
Glendale avenue intermediate, $88,851.
Expended for land and architects' fees, etc., $123,733.31.
Superintendent White's annual report showed that the average cost per pupil for teaching was $47.53 and all other expense per pupil $14.71, making the total cost per pupil in the grades $62.24.
The average number of pupils per class teacher was 40.
The average salary of principals was $1995; the average salary of grade teachers, $1593; the average salary of janitors, $1345.
Property valuations ranged as follows: School sites, $188,500; school buildings, $318,900; school furniture, $35,100; school apparatus, $5000, or a total of $542,400, more than half a million of material assets.

The city now supports twelve schools, viz.:

Wilson avenue intermediate, 411 East Wilson; Miss Carrie Noble, principal.
Broadway, 1201 East Broadway; Mrs. Mary Ogden Ryan, principal.
Columbus avenue, 515 North Columbus; Miss Lorraine Mitchell, principal.
Cerritos, 115 East Cerritos; Mrs. Annie L. S. Curtiss, principal.
Colorado, 220 East Colorado; Miss Ida M. Waite, principal.
Central avenue, 1015 North Central; Miss Annie L. McIntyre, principal.
Pacific avenue, 328 South Pacific; Mrs. Fannie O. Stone, principal.
Doran street, 823 East Doran; Miss Lois G. Hatch, principal.
Acacia avenue, 501 East Acacia; Miss May L. Cornwell, principal.
Magnolia avenue, South San Fernando road; Miss Emma Saxton, principal.
Glendale avenue intermediate, Glendale and Park avenue; Norman Whytock, principal.
Grand View school, Miss Vera Sinclair, principal.

PRINCIPAL NEW INTERMEDIATE

NORMAN WHYTOCK

Norman Whytock, who has been made principal of the new intermediate at Glendale and Park avenue, came to Glendale in 1912 and entered the junior class in Glendale high, from which he was graduated. He then took a course in the Los Angeles Normal and was employed as a teacher at the Wilson avenue intermediate when the United States entered the world war. He enlisted without waiting to be drafted, was sent abroad and participated in the Argonne offensive and other great battles, being wounded at St. Mihiel. He was honorably discharged with the rank of first lieutenant. After the armistice he returned to Glendale and resumed his work in the Wilson avenue intermediate, where, in addition to his regular classes, he assisted in the physical training of boys. His army experience served him in good stead and made him respected and obeyed by his pupils, who were nevertheless very fond of him. His ability to lead and maintain discipline were, doubtless, factors in bringing about his appointment to the position he now holds and which he is so well qualified to fill.

VICE PRINCIPAL GLENDALE AVENUE

MISS GLADYS SHARPE

Miss Gladys Sharpe, assistant principal of the new Glendale avenue intermediate, is not only a very conscientious and efficient instructor, but is a young woman of unusual talent and resource.

For the past three years she has been a teacher of English in the Wilson avenue intermediate, where she has also assisted in the teaching of music and in the putting on of dramatic affairs.

She has a big following of girls who have been her students and is the head of the flourishing troop of Girl Scouts. Her elevation to the vice principalship is felt to be a deserved promotion.

RICHARDSON D. WHITE, WHO HAS DEVELOPED THE GRADE SCHOOLS OF CITY

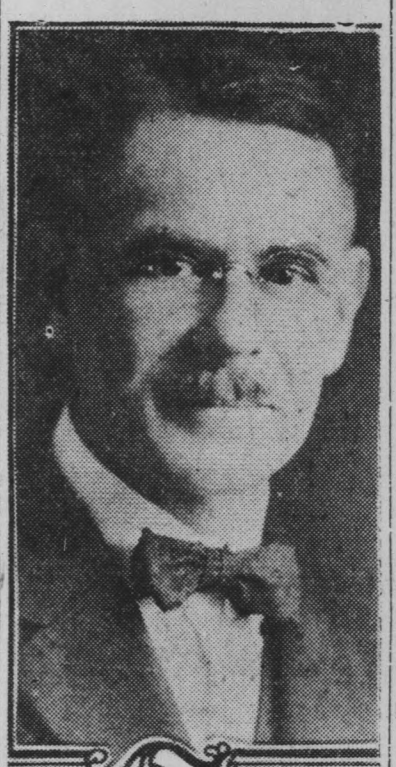

Came to Glendale as High School Professor and Found Career in Direction of the Public Schools

HOLDS THE CHILD ABOVE THE INSTITUTION

Brought to Labors Scholarly Preparation in Many Universities and Forms System Along Lines of Modern Progress

Richardson D. White, superintendent of schools, first became identified with the local education system when he came to Glendale in 1911 as head of the department of mathematics in Glendale Union high. In 1913 he was elected supervising principal of the city schools, which meant that he was principal of the Wilson avenue intermediate and supervisor of the other schools. Later, with a change in the law, his title changed to district superintendent, and then to superintendent of education. Two years ago his duties as superintendent became so heavy that he was relieved as principal of the intermediate. His office was not materially changed by the adoption of the city charter and establishment of a Board of Education, but the board was endowed with greater power and is free to lay out its own course of study for the Glendale schools subject only to the laws of the state.

SUPERINTENDENT OF CITY SCHOOLS

R. D. WHITE

SUPERVISOR OF HOME ECONOMICS

MISS LULU WOOLDRIDGE

Miss Lulu Wooldridge, whose home is in Bloomington, Calif., has been supervisor of home economics in the city schools for a number of years. In 1920 she was given a year's leave of absence that she might take a special course along the line of her work, at Columbia university.

Mr. White was first graduated from an old college established in Virginia at the time of the American revolution, which is still functioning, though it has not grown to be a large institution. It is known as the Hampden-Sidney College of Virginia. He was also graduated from the Washington University of St. Louis, and has taken postgraduate work through no degrees from Harvard, the University of Chicago, and the University of California.

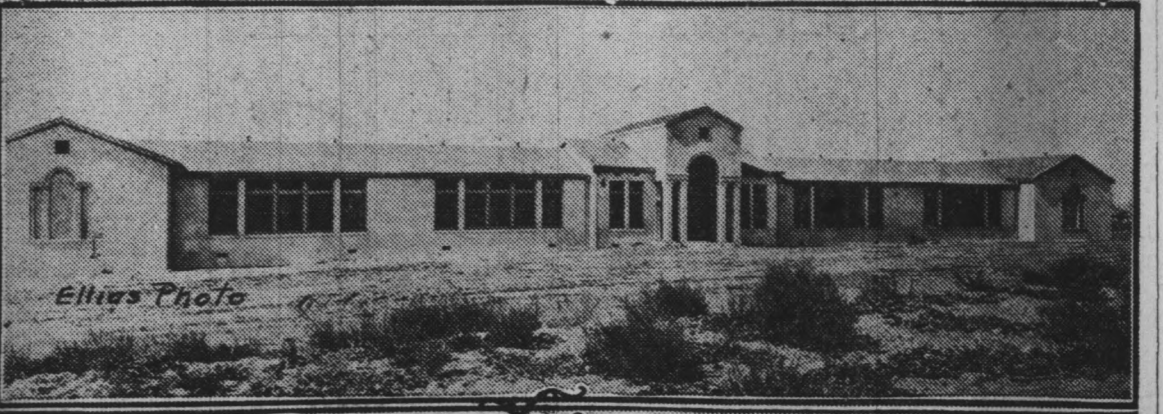

During his administration the greatest development and expansion of the city schools has taken place, and he believes it is only a beginning in the building of a great educational system. He is a man of vision who values the child above the school, which means that in his opinion the day will come when the effort of the school will be to adapt itself to the child's individuality instead of compelling the child to adapt himself to the school. To put it another way, he thinks the grade system as we have it now, will in a great measure disappear.

He feels that the city school system and the high school system have reached the cross roads and it is a good time to consider whether they should not be unified under one authority. Said he: "I feel that for business efficiency and economy there should be a unification of the grammar and high school systems of the city. Take for example, the instruction in the various special lines of work, manual training, cooking, sewing, penmanship, commercial subjects, if the supervision on all those subjects were under one head, we would have a uniform course straight through and would avoid duplication of work. We are in all respects on the best possible terms with the high school and have the most friendly cooperation but the fact remains we have two different systems which may not always have the same viewpoint or policy."

SUPERVISOR OF PHYSICAL WORK

ALBERT BLANFORD

Albert Blanford, supervisor of physical training in the Glendale city schools, became connected with Glendale city schools about 1917 or 1918, after having suffered the disappointment of being rejected for the army because of some defect of the heart. He had had some military training, which was a help in the work he undertook. Though a rigid disciplinarian, he has the respect of the boys he works with and is a great favorite with them, which explains why he has been able to do such good work and show such excellent results.

About 1909 she was elected to the Broadway school, where she has been teaching ever since, with satisfaction to all concerned. During the summer she took a special university course in physical training by way of extra preparation for her work here. She is a Glendalian, her home being at 335 West Windsor road.

MISS IDA M. WAITE

Miss Ida M. Waite, principal of the Colorado street school, who loves and is loved by her little pupils, was one of the teachers in Glendale's first grammar school on Broadway, where she was associated with Mrs. Ryan, its principal. She has been at the head of her present school since it was built and has seeming no desire to change to any other.

Mrs. Fannie Stone, principal of the Pacific avenue school, though she was born in Rhode Island and graduated from its state college in Providence, feels like a native Californian, for she came to Pasadena 25 years ago. She has had a long residence in Glendale and a chance to witness the wonderful development of its schools. Her first teaching experience in this locality was in the West Glendale school before that district was annexed to our city. For more than two years she taught the ungraded room in the Broadway school, and when the Pacific avenue school was established seven years ago, was made its principal. She says that when she first saw our city its only bank was located

MISS ELSA BRENNEMAN

Miss Elsa Brennehan is beginning her fourth year of work in the Glendale city schools and has made a fine record as an instructor and also as a director of musical pageants, several of which have been given by children of the various schools under her supervision, with great success. Her home is in Los Angeles.

She is a graduate of the University of California, Southern Branch, having a general professional diploma and also a diploma for the special course she took in music. She has a beautiful voice and has specialized in music. Her appointment as assistant supervisor in music, to work with pupils in the two intermediates, is felt to be a wise selection.

MISS ANNIE MCINTYRE

Miss Annie McIntyre of 718 East Harvard, this city, has been principal of the Central avenue school ever since it was first organized in 1913, and at that time, Esther Black, daughter of David Black, business manager of Glendale's city schools, who have a little girl, had the honor of raising the first flag which floated over the campus. She came here, however, in 1902, when the high school was located on the corner of Brand and Broadway on the site of what is now the Security National bank, and when the only grammar school in the city was the Broadway school. The houses were greatly scattered, and there was so much open country that she can remember picking "Baby Blue Eyes" along the parkings on Broadway.

She is still as fond of wild flowers as she was then, and is one of the best authorities on them in the city, whose development, especially its school system, she has had opportunity to watch.

'YOUNG DIANA' AT T. D. & L.

Youth, the heyday of life, the period of ambition, struggle and achievement—how quickly it vanishes! This universal experience was never so graphically dramatized as in the photoplay, "The Young Diana," starring Marion Davies, which opened at the T. D. & L. theater yesterday.

Diana May had been a beautiful and wealthy society girl whose only drawback to a happy life was a vulgar "nouveau riche" father. Through the love of Richard Cleve, however, life looms up before her joyously. Not for long, though. She loses Richard and her existence turns to a fretful, agonizing tedium. She loses her personal charm and there seems to be nothing left.

One day she reads in a newspaper of a wonderful elixir of life, discovered by a mysterious alchemist in Switzerland. She goes to beauty and makes her debut in all the fashionable capitals of Europe. Did she win happiness? The photoplay will answer. This picture, made from the novel by Marie Corelli, was produced under the expert direction of Albert Capellani and Robert G. Vignola. In support of Miss Davies is a notable cast, each one of whom does fine individual work. Forrest Stanley is her leading man, and the others are Gypsy O'Brien, Maclyn Arbuckle and Pedro de Cordoba.

RELATIONS WITH RUSSIA

This government is informed that soviet Russia is ready to enter upon preliminary negotiations for the re-establishment of official relations with an American delegation appointed for the purpose.

This is an invitation to step out on dangerous ground. If the present Russian regime is to be permanent, and will lay aside its specialty of promoting revolution in other lands, doubtless the time is coming when relations with it will be inevitable. There is as yet scant faith in its good faith or its quality of permanency. Yet if there is in Russia the possibility of economic functioning, if once more it may be elevated into production, the world will have need of its grains and its goods. If a way is to be opened whereby economic Russia will be given a footing in the world of commerce and activity, probably business rather than diplomacy will be the first effective agent in breaking down the barriers.

Just now Russia has extended a cordial hand to the Turk. This is about the worst it could have done for itself. It shows an evil tendency. The Turk is the foe of civilization. So the Russian bolshevik is deemed to be. If the latter expects to be recognized by decent peoples, it would appear to be his part to attune himself to harmony with law and order. Not that there is fear of a union of the Russians and Turks. It is impossible to believe that the Russians could equip an army. They have nothing with which to equip it, and far from being able to supply a commissary, their larder is bare even in a day of peace.

However, a tentative incursion into the Russian domain, to ascertain the real sentiments prevailing there, the actual purposes, and the available resources upon which trade might be founded, would not commit this government to anything.

PAY FOR PROFESSORS

Dean Flickinger of Northwestern university: that wives are too expensive for college professors. Evidently he did not intend that as a reflection on the wives in question. It was merely his way of saying that professors could not afford to maintain their families. Doubtless he was speaking the exact truth. However, he has been adversely criticized for having done so. The critics apparently take the ground that education is in itself of such value, that whether man possessing it has decent clothes and enough to eat, is a matter of no consequence.

Perhaps there is no other economic absurdity more grotesque than is expressed in the pay of trained educators. There are exceptions, of course. Some of the great universities have endowments enabling them to treat members of the faculty with consideration. In the smaller college, doing a great work, it is really a vital element in the training of young Americans, the professor gets a salary not only less than it should be, but so contemptible that its stowal seems contemptuous. There is many a professor who receives more pay weekly than a professional man in three years.

Money is not a first consideration with the scientific teacher in advanced institutions. Nevertheless it is incidentally of much importance. It is not easy for a man who wears a shabby coat because he has no better, either to command the respect of others, or to retain his own respect. He is likely to measure himself and to be measured, by the value that is placed upon his activities.

As to whether he can afford to get married is a problem for personal solution. He certainly could if he married a rich girl with liberal ideas. To ask two, and then some, perhaps, to live on his salary, would look like the running of a dangerous risk.

ADMIRAL SIMS TO RETIRE

Rear Admiral Sims will retire from age next month. His career in the navy has been long and honorable. As an officer of high rank he has acquitted himself with distinction. It was Sims who reached England with a flotilla of American submarine chasers, and who, when asked when he would be ready for service responded, "We are ready now, sir." That was characteristic of the man.

On more than one occasion Sims has ignored the restrictions placed on the utterances of naval officers. In this manner he has called down censure, that was purely perfunctory, and was issued only as a formality. For every time he had transgressed, he had talked sound sense and good Americanism. The charges that he was pro-British arose solely from those who were professional haters of England, as the charges that he was anti-Irish, could be traced to agitators in this country who put the cause of an Irish faction before that of the United States.

"Born a British subject in Canada" one commentator says in the course of a biased and untrue sketch. Sims was born of American parents who at the time were visiting in Canada. He never was a British subject, and his citizenship was never called into question by a critic desirous of being honest and fair.

The retirement of Sims will be a loss to the navy personnel, and yet, thanks to the fine training provided by the American system, the loss will be that he will be missed for his individuality. There are plenty of efficient officers in the navy, many competent for full command.

THE INVISIBLE FEMALES

"Women of the Invisible Empire" have been chartered in Texas. According to the article filed, the organization is for worthy purposes. According to the plain facts, an "invisible empire" is an anachronism, and whatever the sex of its members, an abomination. It is contrary to the spirit of a free country. It utterly contravenes the teachings of the constitution. It is likely to be conducted by methods that could not bear exposure. In the fires of publicity it would be a scotched snake.

Not long ago a gang of women kidnaped an unsuspected woman under pretense of friendliness, and gave her a cruel beating. This was the invisible empire taking on temporary visibility. No excuse could be advanced for such conduct. The guilty persons deserve whatever is the penalty provided for assault with intent to do great bodily harm. Also there is a prejudice against kidnapping, and in all probability a penalty provided for it.

American citizens devoted to the welfare of their country can afford to work in the open. These pestilent invisible empires include the Ku Klux. They now seem to have acquired a feminine contingent just as pernicious; and just as inimical to approved forms of government and approved social ethics.

COLE

By DR. F. T. COLE
The way you pronounce it is no way. The name has come into note recently. Dr. Emil Cole, a physician in France, has attracted much attention by his lectures and writings on his native country and in helps people get well by suggestion. He is just as well to know precisely what Dr. Cole stands for, hence the following facts, given, taken from his own statements and authoritative accounts by others of his work. First: His method of healing is not to be classed with those of any religious cult. And he has no new philosophical theory. He is a regular physician, and he practices the facts of science and to the scientific method. You might say that he has taken the contents of that element of any philosophy which actually heals human beings here is no doubt that people are laying on of hands by the acceptance of this or that doctrine. Cole has endeavored to get the real scientific contents of this healing process.

Dr. Cole says he is not a miracle man, and does not heal people, for the simpler reason that there are no miracles, and no healers. People get by their own recuperative power. His work is to help this power along. His method is auto-suggestion. This is that every idea or mental concept has a certain influence upon the body. The idea of insomnia, for instance, the idea of sleep determines sleep. Can become deaf, blind, or paralytic by thinking so, and the process can be reversed. Fourth: Perhaps the most important point that Dr. Cole emphasizes is that it is not the will but imagination which has most to do with healing. Whenever there is a conflict between imagination and imagination, he says, imagination always wins. "In those cases not only do we not do what we wish, but even the exact contrary; the more we wish to sleep the more excited we become; the more we search for the name of a person we think we will suppress will laughter the more it bursts out." He therefore urges us to use our imagination and create pictures to ourselves of the desired state.

"I ask the person who has a pain to close his eyes, and I pass my hand over the painful part, and the person to say quickly, 'It passes, it passes,' and after fifteen or twenty seconds the pain usually goes." He has often requested an audience composed of a number of people to close their eyes, and then made them a short speech telling them that their physical functions will become better and better, that their digestion and assimilation will be better, their sleep good and their nervousness will be little by little. He also tells them that their little is better, that their sadness is going little by little, and that every time an evil idea approaches their mind they ought immediately to put it to flight, using the formula: "It passes, it passes." The sum of the whole matter is that he does not believe in a patient to have faith, nor to believe something that is not true, nor to use his will, nor to expect the doctor to cure him. He asks the patient to use his imagination, he shows him how to do it, and he impresses it upon him that his cure mostly depends upon himself.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON
FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Theodore H. Price, editor of Commerce and Finance, says:

"Two-cent postage, the stenographer, and the typewriter have killed good letter writing and have lowered the quality of composition. The effects are far reaching, invading not only the business office but also the study and the author's work shop."

Mr. Price made these remarks to the author of "The Right Word." He continued: "The result of this decline in the art of writing is compositions full of repetitions, diffuseness, and surplussage; and failure to make those nice distinctions in the use of words that are essential in him who would express his thoughts with the nuances that give it value and direction."

Mr. Price laid great emphasis on the importance of reading the classics in order to build a vocabulary and cultivate a clear and effective style. He mentioned such works and authors as Pilgrim's Progress, Hamlet's Soliloquy, Antony's Speech, Robert Burns, Tom Moore, Goldsmith's Traveller, and The Deserted Village.

"I doubt," said Mr. Price, "that any man can acquire facility of expression and correctness in the use of words unless he studies the Bible. I want to add also that listening to good preaching will not only assist in the increasing of one's vocabulary, but will teach one to think."

"Business correspondence," went on Mr. Price, "does more than make an impression on the eye; it should influence thought. Today there is unfortunately a proneness to overstatement. The commercial value of understatement is not yet appreciated."

Mr. Price was speaking with conviction. "Composition is characterized today by a striking mis-use of adjectives. Our writing is hyperbolic. It is full of solecisms. Don't define a solecism," he warned. "Let your readers look up the word if they don't know it."

Mr. Price expressed an aversion for such slangy and unattractive statements as "I'm sold on the idea" and "You've got me sold on that proposition."

"There ought to be," he said in conclusion, "an organized program against the misuse of the English language."

Next interview Monday—Charles F. Coffin, Vice-President and General Counsel of the State Life Insurance Company, Indianapolis, Ind.

THE LISTENING POST

Joy in work.
After all, that is the great secret.
We might frame an obituary for a useful man:
"He builded well and he found joy in his work."
Nothing finer could be said.

For work is the great thing in life.
There are many great things in life.
There is love and friendship and beauty and art and music and poetry and all that.
But work underlies them all.

It is by work that all other things are sustained.
Without work love would be ephemeral and easily perishable.
Friendship would be merely a name.
Art and music would not exist.
Everything would fall and fail without work.

Work is the intelligent direction of energy toward a useful purpose, end or aim.
That is perhaps a sufficient definition.
Work is the harnessing of the energy and intelligence to a purpose.
And work at its best is done with high enthusiasm.

A civilization is a state of social relation and being where work is done with orderly purpose and co-ordination.
The bricklayer takes his trowel.
The carpenter his saw and hammer.
The baker his pan and oven.
The farmer his plow.
The herdsman his shears.

All of them do work that is co-ordinated to a common end.
The greater happiness, increased comfort and more wholesome life of men and women and children.
All are builders.
For they construct something that shall serve people in life.

And there are workmen with words.
With ideas.
With notes in music.
With paints and stone and metal.
And the thing is that they shall build well and find joy in work.

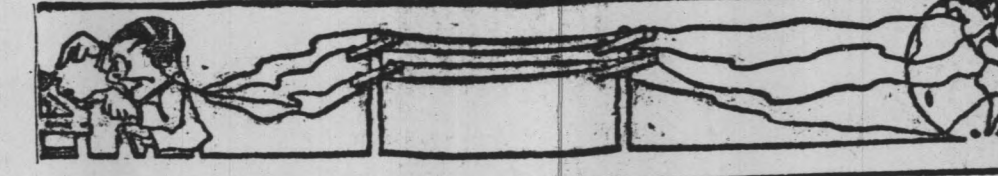

For who finds joy in work provides for his family.
He sustains honest friendship.
He contributes to the sick and poor and needy.
His is a rounded life, touching all phases of existence.
And of no man could a finer epitaph than that he was kind and useful.
So no man could ask a greater epitaph than the one we stated at the beginning:
"He builded well and he found joy in his work."

There is pleasure in many things.
There is exhilaration and stimulation and laughter and gladness and all that.
Temporary manifestations of stirred emotions.
But there is only one, real, abiding, lasting and conscious joy.
That is in work.

So again we bring the gospel of work.
Work that has joy in it.
Work that has purpose in it.
Work that has end and aim in it.
Work that has usefulness in it.
Whatever kind of work it be.

The bricklayer sees the walls arise.
The carpenter lays his joists and rafters.
The baker sees his oven full of browning loaves.
The poet sees his poem take form and shape.
And as they are conscientious and purposeful so there is joy in work.
Something added to the treasure of the world.

JAMES W. FOLEY.

SONGS OF THE POETS

Matin Song—By Thomas Heywood (1576-1650)

Pack, clouds away! and welcome, day!
With night we banish sorrow.
Sweet air, blow soft; mount, lark, aloft
To give my Love good-morrow!
Wings from the wind to please her mind,
Notes from the lark I'll borrow:
Bird, prune thy wing! nightingale, sing!
To give my Love good-morrow.
Notes from them all I'll borrow.

Wake from thy nest, robin red-breast!
Sing, birds in every furrow!
And from each bill let music shrill
Give my fair Love good-morrow!
Blackbird and thrush in every bush,
Stare, linnet and cock sparrow,
You pretty elves, among yourselves
Sing my fair Love good-morrow!
To give my Love good-morrow!
Sing, birds, in every furrow.

A Crazy Experiment and What Came of It

By DR. EDWIN E. SLOSSON

I suppose every scientific man occasionally tries experiments because such a thing has never been attempted before. "The leaving, I say, of no stone in nature unturned, for the magnalia of nature generally lie out of the common roads and beaten paths so that the very absurdity of the thing may sometimes prove of service. But if reason go along with it, that is, if it be evident that an experiment of this nature has never been tried, then it is one of the best ways and plainly shakes the folds out of nature."

The example Bacon gives of such unprecedented experiments is of peculiar interest to us: "But of what I may call close distillation no man has yet made trial. Yet it seems probable that the force of heat, if it can perform its x-plots of alteration within the enclosure of the body, where there is neither loss of the body nor yet means of escape, will succeed at last in hand-cuffing this Proteus of matter and driving it to many transformations; only—the heat must be so regulated and varied that there be no fracture of the vessels."

"No one should be disheartened or confounded if the experiments which he tries do not answer his expectation. For though a successful experiment be more agreeable, yet an unsuccessful one is often times no less instructive. And it must ever be kept in mind (as I am continually urging) that experiments of Light are even more to be sought after than experiments of Fruit."

What Bacon was "continually urging" that "experiments of Light"—those that lead to enlightenment of fundamental principles—are even more to be sought after than experiments of Fruit—those that bring practical results—needs more than ever to be kept in mind at the present day when public and employers are impatient of research that does not bring immediate and profitable returns.

So it is worthy of notice that the example that Bacon cites, as the experiment of a madman, that is, destructive distillation, has been peculiarly productive of both Light and Fruit. Applied to coal it has given us coke for metallurgy, gas for cities, and shops, and coal tar products of innumerable variety and of estimable value. Applied to petroleum in the crackling process it has increased the yield of gasoline by some 2,000,000 gallons a day. By this "handcuffing this Proteus of matter and driving it to many transformations" Light has been, brown upon the structure of the molecule and the chemistry of life.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

ILLINOIS ASHAMED

[Chicago Tribune]

It might occur to a citizen of Illinois that it is a strange exhibit of administration that the prosecution of murderers involved in the massacre at Herrin is dependent upon contribution of money from individuals. In a political feud between the governor of the state and the attorney general the governor had the last word, and his veto of appropriations for the administration of justice now compels citizens to raise funds for the handling of the worst outrage against civilization this state has known in a generation.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Not long ago the energies of the Red Cross were centered upon the war. The organization was big enough and broad enough even at that busy time to be concerned for the unfortunate everywhere. If there came a call from some community stricken by fire or flood or pestilence, the Red Cross responded just as though the war had not given it the most stupendous task it ever had undertaken.

At the close of the war, the thought was that a year would have to be devoted to victims who had come out, wounded or impoverished, to find conditions at home most distressful. So for a year this was the main purpose. Thousands were given direct aid. They were provided with medical attention and nurses. Jobs they were able to perform were found for them. Money was advanced to them from a revolving fund. The families of disabled soldiers, or of soldiers who never came back from overseas, were looked after. The assistance was of inestimable value. It was an expression of the gratitude of the people for service rendered, for hardships endured.

But other years have passed, and the necessity remains. There still are ex-service men who need, deserve, and must have attention. There still are families to be shielded from desperate privation only by the benign intervention of the Red Cross.

It is not to be feared even remotely that popular support for the organization will be lacking, or that it will wane. This country could not afford to be without its Red Cross, fully equipped and in complete operation.

In peace and in war, the Red Cross fills a station peculiarly its own. It has become indispensable, a form of charity and helpfulness universally praised.

It is beyond comprehension that the Turks should have been permitted to perpetrate such outrages as at Smyrna have shocked the world. It is not strange that, given the opportunity, the Turk should have done these things, such being his way.

The Turks were on the losing side in the war. They seem not to have lost anything, not even the grossest of their savage instincts.

Apparently the Turkish problem is too great for solution. It might have been settled at the time when the armistice was signed, and the world was launched with loud cheers on a sea of peace, over the bosom of which tempests have raged and at their command they had great armies.

An automobile has been fished out of the lake at Devil's Gate, near Pasadena, after submersion for many months. Aside from the fact that it long had been listed as stolen, little is known of its history. In various waters elsewhere automobiles in large number have been found. Owners had made a regular business of dumping them in the deep, and collecting insurance. But, of course, nobody out here would act in so wicked a fashion.

There is not perfect sex equality yet. In Spokane a noisy citizen tried to kiss a policeman, and they sent him to the crazy house. Had he sought to kiss a police woman not a question would have arisen as to his sanity.

The real eater of dogs will be found upon investigation not to have affection for any dumb creature. The love that is in his system is centered upon himself.

There are some who look forward to the day when there shall be no animal life save of the human type. They have peculiar ideas of paradise.

To a minister in Iowa there fell the disagreeable duty of hanging a man. The minister had been elected sheriff, and showed no desire to shirk the responsibilities of the office. Doubtless he gladly would have been excused had his conscience permitted. The sheriff of Erie county, New York, once hanged a man. Afterwards the people of the United States elected him President twice, and history will affirm that he was a very good President indeed.

When the trial of Mrs. Phillips was set for September, it was taken for granted that upon arrival of the date, postponement would be demanded. The conduct of the prisoner seems to have been guided solely with this end in view.

There does not appear to the public the slightest reason for delay. There is but a single question at issue. Did Clara Phillips lure Mrs. Meadows to a lonely spot and beat her to death with a hammer? Yes or no. This is all the jury will have to consider.

The intimated plan of befouling the character of the victim does not meet with favor. It is an indecency. The character of the victim is not to be on trial, and has nothing to do with the case.

The form of sentence "from one to ten years" does not seem logical. If a convicted person has so many elements of good as to indicate that he might be fit for freedom in a year, it is not reasonable to suppose that he has such elements of bad that there possibly could be propriety in detaining him ten years. Moreover, such a sentence usually means the minimum. It is quite certain that in instances more than the minimum is deserved.

WATCHING THE PARADE

BY JOHN PILGRIM

Maybe if I had been crossed in love a few more times I might have been more successful than I am. This is just a theory, advanced for more success. But the thought came when I talked with Johnny Hanger.

"I'm assistant general manager now," said Johnny, "and as soon as the old man retires I step up."

When I first knew Johnny he was just an ordinary, decent sort of a kid. He was making a good salary as a bookkeeper, if bookkeepers make good salaries. As soon as he got one more raise in pay he proposed to get married. He was the most thoroughly in love young man I have ever known. Then the girl threw him down.

"I have ever known," said Johnny, as we talked over the coffee, "I'm not blaming her now. But it almost wrecked me then." She was a snippy young woman, pretty as a peach, and with an ambition to have more clothes and a yellow car than any of the other girls with whom she had grown up. She loved Johnny, I think, but she could not infuse him with clothes-and-car-ambitions. By and by she found it was as easy to love some one else who had brighter prospects and Johnny got the rage.

"I had to do something with my nights," said he, "and I never liked to drink and play cards. So I began to go to a night school and study languages. Then I got interested."

When the boss was tangled up with a badly written French letter one day Johnny helped him out. Then he wrote some letters in Spanish that got business. Because he had studied South American conditions he asked permission to supervise the packing of the goods sold on his letters and to handle the invoicing and the consular intricacies.

"It's a funny thing," said Johnny. "I never studied in order to rise. That is, that was not my aim. But as I was given more authority I continued to add to my stock in trade because it had become interesting. I asked for a job on the road to put my new power in operation."

It would be nice to say that the girl who dropped Johnny was punished by fate. But the truth is that her husband has almost as much money as Johnny has.

The Carolina rail or sora has small, short wings, flies reluctantly and with great awkwardness, yet in its migration this bird easily crosses the wide reaches of the Caribbean sea.

Many a bobwhite rounds out its full period of existence without ever going 10 miles from the nest where it was hatched.

The brighter the lightning the more blue it appears, while distant lightning appears red for the same reason that the sun and moon appear red near the horizon.

REGIONAL PLAN IS EXPLAINED AT MEETING

Big Organization Passes
Basic Resolutions at Conference

In General
The district covered by the Regional Planning conference is a central district (about 10 miles in diameter) surrounded by four sectors, divided by a north and south line and an east and west line intersecting at the center of Los Angeles, and extending outward to the county limits. The intent of these specifications is to cover the physical "civic" problems of this district with the purpose of co-ordinating all development efforts toward unified results.

The physical make-up of this "commonwealth of Los Angeles" (somebody please name it) consists of a metropolitan or city center surrounded by many satellite sub-center cities and communities—all to be interconnected by adequate transportation, by means of both railroads and highways, to be provided with an abundance of pure water, to be provided with sanitary sewers, and to have easy access to a system of parks and boulevards.

The individual identity of each separate community is to be recognized and encouraged, but for the common needs a surrender of authority to some central power is anticipated—leaving local problems which make the local character of each center or sub-center to be handled by local authorities.

Highways:
In planning a comprehensive system of highways throughout the regional district, the importance of Los Angeles as our focal city must be recognized, and the present system of highways should be augmented by securing rights of way for adequate "radial" and "circuit" highways. The following is a summary of specifications for developing a comprehensive highway system in the Regional Planning District:

(1) Select those lengths of exist-

REDUCED RATES TO LEGION MEETING

So. Pacific Announces a
Cut for the New Orleans Convention

The Southern Pacific announces that it will put into effect round trip reduced passenger rates for delegates attending the annual convention of the American Legion and Women's Auxiliary, American Legion, at New Orleans, October 16 to 20. The reduced rates will be made from all points on Southern Pacific lines in California, Oregon, Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico and Utah. Tickets will be on sale from points in California, Oregon and Nevada, October 6 to 14 and from points in New Mexico and Utah, October 7 to 14, with return limit November 20.

ing streets that by location should fulfill the functions of "regional highways." Secure the rights of way for extending these highways and for widening them, to the end that a comprehensive system of "radial," "circuit" and "connecting" highways may be constructed throughout Los Angeles county.

(2) Fill in the necessary links of the "circuit" highway now largely existing around the city of Los Angeles at about five miles from the original Plaza, and select and develop radial major highways into the outlying territory, crossing the "regional" highways and other important cross-connection highways at approximately half-mile intervals.

(3) Strive to make all major and regional highways not less than 20 feet in width, with 10-foot setback for building lines, in order to provide for possible future widening if traffic demands additional width.

(4) Locate "regional" highways as by-passes to congested business centers, because through travel arteries should not be subjected to the congestion of local business, nor should they themselves add to any local business congestion by introducing a large volume of through travel into the business areas.

(5) Compile adequate topographical and engineering information as a basis for intelligent planning, and through competent advisors with knowledge of the recognized principles in city and regional planning, prepare a comprehensive plan and program for the location and development of a system of "regional" highways, "major" highways and "highways" for Los Angeles county.

Subdivisions:
(1) A "master map" showing the location of present and proposed highways and boulevards should be prepared and filed in each city and in the county surveyor's office for the guidance of subdividers. The city and county authorities should cooperate in keeping these maps up-to-date, and a united effort is to be made to secure a consistent layout of through streets and highways.

(2) There should be a minimum of cross-streets along each main artery of traffic, and long blocks along principal thoroughfares should be encouraged, with intermediate pedestrian and public utility.

(3) A comprehensive sewerage survey—under some competent county agency, to be created for the purpose—dividing the county into such districts as may be necessary to properly provide permanent sanitary relief for all time, should combine as many cities and communities as can be properly served, and require unity planning sewage disposal to make their plans conform, not only for their own immediate work, but to fit into the final scheme for that district and the county as a whole.

Flood Control:
(1) Additional reservoirs in the mountains should be financed as soon as possible.

(2) As far as practicable these reservoirs should be designed to act as flood control adjuncts and also as water supply reservoirs.

(3) The channel protection work now under way should be completed.

Parks and Boulevards:
(1) All parkways and pleasure boulevards should be established as separate features from traffic highways.

(2) All parkways and pleasure boulevards when located along river channels, arroyos, canyons and the sea coast, should be established so as to pass under all other lines of traffic. When located on ridges or mountain crests, they should be established so as to pass over all other lines of traffic, by bridges or viaducts. Briefly, no grade crossings should be permitted to exist.

(3) Parkways and pleasure boulevards, when established along channel embankments, can be beautified economically, artistically and with great scenic effect at low cost. As a utility, they provide easy means of constructing trunk sewers and storm drains, and a rapid means of transportation in case of flood control work.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

THE FELLOW IN OVERALLS

His face has a smudge on cheek and brow
And his hands are far from clean,
But they have a delicate touch somehow
When they handle the big machine.
The old press stops and its ardor cools,
Or the engine limps and stalls,
And somebody comes with a kit of tools,
Some fellow in overalls.

A thousand parts and it may be more,
Little wires and wheels and springs,
And they lie in a pile on the workroom floor
Like a lot of misfit things.
But he sorts them out and he knows each one,
From frame to bearing-balls,
And he makes that pile of stuff to run,
The fellow in overalls.

A steel spring here and a clamp and screw,
A bolt and a nut and a wheel,
A plate and a rod and a curly-cue
And it seems to breathe and feel,
For it clicks and twists at a sprightly pace,
Each part in its right place falls,
And you kind o' forget the smudge on the face
And the spots on the overalls.
Oh, knickers are fine and uniforms,
And around the course in par,
And the heart of you thrills sometimes and warms
Where the clean three baggers are.
But the world's workshop is a busy place
When the big boss Business calls,
And never a soul can take the place
Of the fellow in overalls.

ity "ways" about 20 feet wide, located conveniently.

(4) A booklet or guide should be prepared reciting the various steps required to change raw land into subdivided areas, giving technical suggestions as to zoning, width of streets, size of lots, set-back lines, grades and best use of the topography to secure the highest use of the land.

Transportation:
(1) The transcontinental lines should be electrified.

(2) There should be a union terminal station in Los Angeles.

(3) Population centers and sub-centers should be so connected that rapid transportation of passengers and freight between such centers is possible.

(4) A system of rapid transit by rail from the center of Los Angeles to each satellite sub-center should be encouraged to work in conjunction with auto-bus terminals at all principal subcenters, using the busses as a medium for collecting and distributing in the territory not served by rail transportation.

(5) Grade crossings should be eliminated as soon as economic conditions permit.

(6) A district entitled to transportation facilities, whether freight or passenger, should be furnished such facilities.

(7) The Los Angeles harbor should be a port readily and freely accessible, whether approached from land or sea.

Sanitation:
(1) In developing a metropolitan sewage system, political boundaries should be ignored in order that the fullest co-operation may be had between communities and topographical areas logically grouped and co-operating where such interests are in common.

(2) A comprehensive sewerage survey—under some competent county agency, to be created for the purpose—dividing the county into such districts as may be necessary to properly provide permanent sanitary relief for all time, should combine as many cities and communities as can be properly served, and require unity planning sewage disposal to make their plans conform, not only for their own immediate work, but to fit into the final scheme for that district and the county as a whole.

Flood Control:
(1) Additional reservoirs in the mountains should be financed as soon as possible.

(2) As far as practicable these reservoirs should be designed to act as flood control adjuncts and also as water supply reservoirs.

(3) The channel protection work now under way should be completed.

Parks and Boulevards:
(1) All parkways and pleasure boulevards should be established as separate features from traffic highways.

FEDERATION P-T. A. PRESIDING OFFICER

MRS. EUSTACE B. MOORE

Mrs. Eustace B. Moore of 1259 South Maryland avenue, president of the Glendale Federation of Parent-Teacher Associations, has been a resident of the city for a number of years, and was actively interested in parent-teacher work in Los Angeles before coming to Glendale. She early identified herself with the Cerritos Avenue association and served as its president for two and one-half years, and meanwhile held committee chairmanships in education and philanthropy under the local federation. Last May she was elected to the presidency of the federation and is bringing to her work great enthusiasm.

She is a native daughter of California and a woman of varied talents, having been a public entertainer as a singer and reader since her childhood. She is in great demand on local programs and is a working member of several organizations, including the Mary Jane Gillette Tent, Daughters of Veterans, the Madrigal club and the Mutual Benefit Reading circle.

should be made of run-off passing from the foothills belt to the coastal plain and from the coastal plain wasting into the sea. The only measurements now available are those of run-off in the mountains.

(6) The great influx of people into the mountains is seriously menacing the purity of our mountain water and threatening the health of many communities. Mountain highways should be constructed on the ridges instead of in the canyons in order to minimize stream contamination and, also, so as not to interfere with future storage reservoirs.

(7) Fifty per cent of the water used for domestic purposes in our cities passes out through the sewer system. Whenever practicable, this water should be reclaimed, either by using it as a purified effluent directly upon the land or by allowing it to flow down natural waterways in such a manner as to replenish underground water basins.

Finance:
There should be a uniform assessment made for tax purposes throughout the district upon a basis of 100 per cent cash values instead of at various "ratios" as at present.

Topographical Map:
(1) A topographical map with 5-foot intervals for the plain and 20-foot contour intervals for the hills of the entire district, is desirable for all kinds of planning work.

(2) The cities and county have considerable data which should be co-ordinated, compiled and published.

(3) The county surveyor's office should be charged with the responsibility of making this data available.

(4) The county supervisors have appropriated necessary funds and consummated an agreement with the U. S. government whereby this survey will be completed and the maps printed in the near future.

Water Supply:
(1) Due to the lack of economical surface storage sites, most of the communities of Los Angeles county have been dependent upon the several large underground water basins for the major portion of their supply. Generally, these basins (with the exception of the San Fernando valley, which has been kept up by return waters from irrigation with Owens river water) have shown a marked lowering of the water plan. There is, therefore, much need for greater conservation measures.

(2) Owing to the lack of economical surface storage sites, the necessary storage must be financed by combined flood control, irrigation and domestic interests. Fortunately, we already have the necessary county-wide organization in the Los Angeles county flood control district. This district is organized for both flood control and conservation, and therefore we need not stress here the necessary organization program, but pass to the essentials of such conservation.

(3) As the limit of development in the arid west is the water supply, it is necessary that all public and private developments be so carried out as to assist the conservation of water and the maintenance of its purity.

(4) Flood water should be conserved in mountain reservoirs and spread upon the gravel cones to replenish ground water basins. The spreading areas should be extended and with all channels held in public ownership so that they may be preserved and not encroached upon. Storm channels should provide for maximum percolation.

(5) In order to determine what may be accomplished by conservation measures, continuous records
